32 Commerce street, Philadelphia.

The excellence of these Scales is acknowledged by all who have used them. Below is a report of a committee of the American Institute:

The Steelyard Balance exhibited at the 7th annual Fair of the American Institute by Messrs. E. & T. Fairbanks, as their invention, is constructed upon principles capable of adaptation to the dimensions and form of any bodies, whose weight is to be taken, from one pound to one hundred thousand. Its equilibrium, preparatory to weighing, is easily, promptly, and accurately obtained. The distinguishing improvements of the Balance consist in the inventor's peculiar method of reducing all frictions in effect wonothing. This, in a large Platform Balance capable of weighing very bulky and heavy bodies, is obviously of very great utility in all sales transacted by weight.

Every Merchant and Trader having this instrument in his store, (and it occupies a smaller space than any other of equal power,) may be perfectly sure of having full weight in all his purchases; and besides this, its form and structure will enable one man to weigh more in a given space of time, than can be done by the Steelyard mounted on legs now in common use.

(Signed) GEORGE SULLIVAN,
my 17-dim Chairman of the Committee.
