The United States of America.

Boundaries and Extent. THE territory belonging to the United States of America, is bounded on the north by upper & lower Canada; east, by the Provinces of New Brunswick, and Atlantic Ocean; south, by East and West Florida; west by the Mississippi river. Its north line which separates it from Canada, is about 1400 miles in length in a due east and west course: its southern line is about 600 miles in length its medium breadth north and south is about 1040 miles. The whole surface of this territory is reckoned at a million square miles, or 640 millions of acres; of which 57 millions are supposed to be water.

This extensive country lies between Lat.  $30^{\circ} 20'$  and  $48^{\circ} 15'$  N. Lat, and between  $64^{\circ}$  and  $96^{\circ}$  W. Longitude from London.

Division, Population, and Chief Towns. The American Republic is composed of sixteen independant states, confederated under one general form of government, and may naturally be classed in three divisions, viz, Northern or Eastern, Middle and Southern States—as follows:

Div.	States.	Pop. in 1790.	Chief Towns
Eastern States.	Vermont	85 539	Rutland, Windsor
	N. Hamp.	141 855	Portsmouth Concord.
	D. of Maine.	96 540	Portland. Hallowell.
	Massachusetts	378 787	Boston. Salem.
	Rhode Island	68 825	Newport, Providence
	Connecticut	237 946	Newhaven. Hartford.
Middle States.	New York	340 120	New York Albany.
	New Jersey	184 139	Trenton. Brunswick.
	Pennsylvania	434 373	PHILAD. Lancaster.
	Delaware.	59 094	Wilmington. Dover.
	Territory { N.W. of O. }	*72,820	Maricotta, Greenville.

* Including 65,000 Indians.

Div. States.	Pop. in 1790.	Chief Towns.
Southern States.	Maryland	319 728	Annapolis. Baltimore.
	Virginia	747.610	Richmond. Norfolk.
	Kentucky	73 677	Lexington. Frankfort.
	N. Carolina	393.751	Newbern. Raleigh.
	Tennessee	77.262	Knoxville. Nashville.
	S. Carolina	249,073	Charleston. Columbia.
	Georgia	82 548	Savannah. Louisville.

N. B. Those places in Italics are the seats of government, or the towns in which the state legislatures commonly hold their sessions.

Rivers. The largest rivers that border upon, or pass through the United States, are the Mississippi, the Ohio, and Tennessee, on the West of the Allegany mountains, and the Alataamaha, Savannah, Santee, Cape Fear, Roanoke, James, Potowmack, Susquehannah, Delaware, Hudson, Connecticut, Merrimack, Piscataqua, Androskoggin, Keanebeck, and Penobscot, whose general courses are from N. W. and N. to S. E. and S. and fall into the Atlantic Ocean.

Animals. The territory of the United States contains about one fourth of the number of species of quadruped animals in the known world. Some of them are common to North America, and the European and Atlantic parts of the eastern continent; other parts are peculiar to this country.

Birds. No less than 271 species of Birds have been found and described by the inhabitants of the United States. They generally exceed those of Europe in the beauty of their plumage, but are said to be much inferior to them in the melody of their notes.

Government. The United States constitute what may with strict propriety be called a REPUBLIC. It consists of seven separate, independant states, having governors, constitutions and laws of their own, united under one general, federal constitution of government, administered by an elective head, and by a proportionate number of Representatives of the people from all the different states.

A NEW-YEAR'S ADDRESS.

To the FARMERS.

AS your utmost wishes great,
By your crops of corn and wheat;
Turnips and potatoes growing
In profusion—all o'erflowing;
Horses in full vigor neighing,
Cows and bullocks manstrous weighing,
Shelves with pondrous cheeses banding,
Firkins with pack'd butter rending—
Bliche Contentment's dulcet note,
All around your dwellings float.

To the MERCHANTS.

Ye that deal in silks and satins,
Shoes, galo shoes, slips, and pattens,
Lace and muslin, cloth and linen,
Gloves and mits for men and women;
Rum and sugar, rice and brandy;
Frying-pans and griddles handy;
Prosper still in all you do;
Richer, and yet richer grow

To the LADIES.

Gentle, lovely, loving sex,
Whom no boitt'rous passions vex ;
Take our homage in good par ,
Warm and honest from the heart,
Unexperient'd as we are,
We can see that you are fair ;
And may often find it duty,
Low to bow and reverence beauty

To the LAWYERS.

You, from others' brawls and strife,
Keep a quiet peaceful life ;
Bread and butter, corn and peas,
Growing out of writs and pleas ;
Pork and beef fly to their stations,
At command of decizations ;
While demurrers devious course,
Keeps the chaise, and feeds the horse

To all other respectable Citizens.

Tho' the north wind fiercely howls,
Tho' the kindling tempest scowls,
Tho' the wreathed snows arise
In chill whirlwinds in the skies ;
Yet to cheer the vacant hour,
As we have it in our power,
Advice and humor, chance and now,
Yearly we'll present to you.
Sordid gain we are above,
All that stimulates is love ;
— Love to you, our worthy betters ;
— Love to science and to letters ;
And, to take it in a jump,
Love to mankind in the lump
